Treatment of Jews Shocking To Roosevelt

President Says He Can Hardly Believe Reports From Abroad

Hugh R. Wilson Ordered From Berlin to Washington for Report and Consultation

Vast Two Continent Defense System in Which All Americans Would Take Part Proposed

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—President Roosevelt denounced the German Dictatorship's treatment of Jews today as almost beyond belief, and then pictured a vast two-continent defense system in which all the Americas would present a united front against aggression from abroad.

His remarks on the Jews, given out at a press conference, were as follows:

"The news of the past few days from Germany has deeply shocked public opinion in the United States. Such news from any part of the world would inevitably produce a similar profound reaction among American people in every part of the nation.

German Ambassador Recalled

"I myself could scarcely believe that such things could occur in a twentieth century civilization.

"With a view to gaining a first hand picture of the situation in Germany, I asked the Secretary of State to order our Ambassador in Berlin to return at once for report and consultation."

Thus Mr. Roosevelt disclosed that he was back of yesterday's order calling Ambassador Hugh R. Wilson home. Mr. Roosevelt said he could not disclose how long the Ambassador would stay here. This gave rise to speculation that the envoy might be kept at home indefinitely.

Mr. Roosevelt's words on military defenses were closely linked, in his listeners' minds, to his statement about Germany because of widespread speculation that the totalitarian Reich may seek to extend its influence in Latin America.

Discuss Greater Air Force

Mr. Roosevelt declared that, as one means of insuring protection for the 20 American Republics and Canada, he and his aides are discussing an increased air force.

Giving a possible preview of the United States arguments to be presented at the forthcoming Pan-American Conference at Lima, Peru, he said world events of the past few years and the new techniques for waging war have prompted the United States to re-orient itself with regard to North, Central and South America.

At no time since the Latin American countries struggled for their

Charge Logan Negro With Manslaughter in Highway Deaths

Logan, W. Va., Nov. 15 (AP)—Because witnesses told State Police 50-year-old Jack Bostic twice rammed his car into a bridge abutment, the negro miner from St. Marys was arrested today for questioning about the deaths of two men, killed Sunday by an automobile which failed to stop.

Dock Wright, 35, of Page, Va., and Pearl D. Luster, 45, of Colson, Ky., both of whom had been working in Logan county mines, were found dead by an embankment, apparently killed by a car.

State Police Sergeant W. E. DeMoss, who said he would charge manslaughter and failure to stop after an accident, refused to admit striking his car, but that he stopped and could

Lenient Jurors Fired by Judge In Murder Trial

Prosecutor Scores Mingo County Jury After Acquittal

Two Others Freed on Murder Charges in Recent Trials

Williamson, W. Va., Nov. 15 (AP)—Lenient juries which fail to convict drew censorious remarks from both judge and prosecutor today as they fired Mingo county's jurors for the rest of the term.

After the acquittal of Claude Workman of a charge of killing his nephew, prosecutor Lafe B. Chafin stood before Judge Charles W. Ferguson and bluntly remarked:

"I don't propose to convict and send to jail for six months or more a lot of unfortunate caught stealing or with liquor when those accused of murder go free."

He asked that all jurors be discharged, saying that "it is futile to proceed with the trial of remaining cases on the criminal docket with this jury."

In complete agreement, Judge Ferguson, who only a little while before had ordered the jurors in the Workman case out of court, granted the motion. The judge replied to Chafin by saying:

"I was of that opinion when I discharged from further service the jury in the Workman case."

Young Also Acquitted

Others acquitted during the present term included Paul Chambers, 21-year-old son of a Matewan merchant, who was tried for the death of 18-year-old Emma Farley of McCarr, Ky., an employee at the Matewan clinic.

Ferguson termed the Workman verdict a "miscarriage of justice." He made the same remark six months ago during the May term after the acquittal of Mrs. Zell Collins, accused of the fatal shooting of Mrs. Geraldine Reed on a street at Matewan.

Felony cases were ended for the term and only misdemeanor trials remained. That prompted Chafin's remarks about prosecuting minor offenders.

All but a half dozen misdemeanor defendants were dismissed and the names of the others held over until the January term.

Claude Workman, a mine foreman at Red Jacket, was accused of shooting Luther Workman, 23, during a family quarrel last July 17. The defense claimed the gun was discharged accidentally while Claude and his brother, Irwin, father of Luther, were struggling for possession.

State witnesses testified Luther Workman was shot as he fled from his uncle.

160 Officers at Pier When Bremen Sails

New York, Nov. 15 (AP)—More than 100 uniformed police and 60 detectives were assigned tonight to the North German Lloyd line pier from which the S. S. Bremen was due to sail at midnight.

Police Commissioner Lewis Valentine said the State Department had asked that German ships and the German Consulate be protected, but added that steps to afford such protection had been taken prior to the request.

Hoover Becomes Grand-Father for Fourth Time

Palo Alto, Calif., Nov. 15 (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover and Mrs. Hoover became grandparents for the fourth time today when a son was born to the Allan Hoovers.

It was Mr. and Mrs. Allan Hoover's first child.

Woods Fires Somerset

Somerset, Pa., Nov. 15 (AP)—Two woods fires lit the Somerset County countryside tonight.

The first spread to ten acres of timber from a fire of undetermined origin which destroyed Harry Nicklow's barn near Kingwood, 15 miles south of Somerset.

Near Garrett, 18 miles southeast of Somerset, another fire threatened 2,000 acres of timberland.

Goering Said to Resent Wave of Nazi Violence

Anti-Semitic Action Jolted His Four-Year Economic Plan

CONSULAR OFFICIAL RESIGNS IN DESPAIR

Tells of Heart Rending Pleas of Mothers Seeking U. S. Visas

By LYNN HEINZERLING

Berlin, Nov. 15 (AP)—General Hermann Wilhelm Goering was reported in reliable quarters tonight to have been in an angry mood when he learned of the new wave of Nazi anti-Semitic violence, on the grounds that it severely jolted the four-year economic plan he directs.

The field marshal, whose dozen positions include the premiership of Prussia and supreme dictator over foreign exchange and raw materials, was reported to have given strict orders to cease property destruction like that of last Thursday when Jewish stores and synagogues throughout Germany were damaged and burned.

He was said also to have berated those responsible for damages costing millions of dollars, but the smashing of a laundry and a grocery near Tempelhof airdrome in Berlin last night indicated disregard for his orders.

Goering's views differed in principle with those of Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, who said he approved "inwardly," as he put it, the wholesale demolition beginning last Thursday.

While Goering and Propaganda Minister Goebbels outwardly are bosom friends and publicly are ardent sponsors of each other's policies, nevertheless they differed in principle, according to sources close to the field marshal, over last week's burnings and window smashings.

Decrees Hurt Nazis

Goering's decrees Saturday putting Jews out of business in Germany were severe on the Jews, Nazis admit, but seen through Nazi eyes they represented an effort to conserve the property and possessions of the persecuted minority in favor of the majority.

In other words, Goering, by virtually dispossessing the Jews, is attempting to make their wealth serve the interests of the Nazi Reich.

On the other hand, Goebbels frankly told the foreign press association he would have solved the Jewish question even more radically had he been in charge of that phase of the anti-Jewish manifestations.

Although denying these were "organized," he said: "While I would not have done as the people did x x x yet I admit that inwardly I stood completely on the side of the people."

To Goebbels it evidently did not matter so much that millions worth of property was destroyed, but Goering has been admonishing the nation to save every scrap of paper, every sheet of tinfoil, every meat bone, toothpaste tube and potato peeling.

Worst Setback

He now finds last week's destruction was the worst setback his four-year plan for self-sufficiency has received since its inception.

United States Ambassador Hugh R. Wilson conferred with several diplomatic colleagues today and was understood one possible solution of the Jewish problem under consideration was that some former German colony now under mandate

Federal Grand Jury Indicts 97 For Violating Anti-Trust Laws

Chicago, Nov. 15 (AP)—Ninety-seven officials and organizations charged with violating the Anti-Trust laws in the milk and ice cream industries marshaled their forces for a finish fight tonight.

Shortly after two Federal Grand Jury Indictments had been made public, the defendants and their attorneys started a parade to the court house to post bond of $1,000 each as the first step in a legal battle against the latest move in the Government's extensive drive against alleged monopolies.

City officials, business executives and labor leaders were among the 43 individuals and 14 firms and associations named in the milk bill.

Twenty men and 20 groups were accused in the ice cream complaint, charging a conspiracy of nationwide proportions to restrain sale of counter freezers.

"There is no justification for any charges against us," stated Thomas H. McInerney, President of the National Dairy Products Corp. "We are determined to fight these charges vigorously, confident that our business and executives will be completely vindicated."

State Appeals Ruling in Two Revenue Cases

Reversal in Pimlico Race Track License Fee Sought

JOCKEY CLUB CLAIMS TRACK IS IN CITY

Decision Exempting State Judges From Income Tax Also Attacked

Annapolis, Nov. 15 (AP)—Two State Appeals from Baltimore court opinions lowering state revenues were argued before the State Court of Appeals today.

The Baltimore Circuit Court ruling which held Pimlico Race Track should pay $6,000 and not $9,000 daily license fee was challenged by the State in one appeal.

The State also sought a reversal in the Baltimore City Court opinion exempting State judges from payment of state income taxes.

In the race track suit, The Maryland Jockey Club of Baltimore City argued that its plant was not in Baltimore County but within the City, and that diversion of an additional $3,000 fee to Baltimore County really was unfair and discriminatory. The track was formerly located in Baltimore county before annexation by the city.

Legislature Fixes Fee

The State contended the legislature fixed Pimlico's license fee, and that it did not concern the track management how the state allocated distribution of the fund.

The Income Tax appeal was taken in the case of Chief Judge Samuel K. Dennis of the Baltimore Supreme Court, who won a ruling six months ago during the May term after the acquittal of Mrs. Zell Collins, accused of the fatal shooting of her son during Colonial times to safeguard the independence of judges.

The state argued that Judge Dennis had only received his salary in full, and that his position as Judge did not exempt him from the ordinary duties of a common citizen. The state contended the ruling will exempt all state employees if upheld, a dissenting opinion of the late Mr. Justice Holmes of the United States Supreme Court arguing that such an exemption created a privileged class of judges was introduced.

Appeal Mandamus Order

Harry C. Jones, State Employment Commissioner, appealed the Baltimore Superior Court order of mandamus directing that he return 23 employees of the House of Representatives to the House of Representatives for a post-Munich agreement.

Informed sources said negotiations for such a post-Munich agreement were spurred when Hitler shelved at least temporarily the old German imperial policy of western expansion and of attempting to challenge Britain as a sea power.

Abandons 20-year Policy

Instead he concentrated on another equally well-established policy of spreading German influence eastward to the Black Sea and beyond. During the Czechoslovak crisis Hitler announced Germany did not want Alsace-Lorraine, the provinces France won in the World War, a factor making settlement between the two powers easier.

France was represented by these as being willing to abandon thus her 20-year policy of ringing the Reich with French allies, a policy that received a shattering blow at Munich when France agreed to dismemberment of her Czechoslovak ally.

While Daladier's government thus broke new ground in Franco-German relations, friends of the premier pushed plans to make him virtual dictator of France for at least three years.

The plan called for postponement of parliamentary elections now scheduled for the spring of 1940 and extension of the premier's decree powers until 1942.

Deputies who favor the plan, reportedly with Daladier's approval, contend such a move would give him a chance to push through needed reforms in domestic and foreign policy.

Outside Bomb Cause Of Ship Explosion

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—Secretary Roper announced tonight that the explosion on the German Steamship Vancouver at Oakland, Calif., November 3, apparently was caused by a bomb from outside the ship.

Suspending a Bureau of Marine inspection investigation of the blast, Roper said:

"Since it is apparent that a bomb was placed outside the hull deliberately by some unknown, the solution of the apparent crime becomes a matter for the action of the Department of Justice."

The Secretary's statement pointed out that "parts of the side plating were blown a considerable distance inboard and the plating around the break is bent inboard, which appears to make it almost certain that the explosion took place outside the hull."

A Justice Department official said Attorney General Cummings had been informed of the Navigation Bureau findings and had referred the ship investigation to the criminal division.

Judge Orders Probe Of Reports to 'Fix' Jury at Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, Nov. 15 (AP)—District Attorney Andrew Park halted all New Allegheny County Jury trials today to investigate reports that attempts were being made to contact jurors trying a case charging vote fraud in the Borough of Homestead.

On Park's request, Judge Frank P. Patterson issued orders for a grand jury investigation of the "fix" charges shortly before eight persons were to go on trial on charges made more than a year ago.

The prosecution contended they returned a false count in a primary election.

A stream of jurors passed through the grand jury room and submitted to questioning by Park and his assistant regarding whether they had been approached.

C.I.O. Sets Itself Up as Permanent Union Congress

Answers Roosevelt Plea by Declaring for No Compromise

Adopts New Name and Sets Forth Objects of Congress

Pittsburgh, Nov. 15 (AP)—The C.I.O. sets itself up tonight as a permanent congress of industrial organizations after answering President Roosevelt's plea for labor peace with the declaration that it would accept "no compromise" with the A.F. of L.

Delegates to the union's first convention adopted two articles of a proposed constitution. The first gave the organization its new name and the second set forth the objects of the congress.

Action on the remaining articles was halted abruptly 45 minutes before scheduled adjournment time by renewal of debate on the second article.

Resembles A.F. of L. Constitution

Joseph Curran, head of the national maritime union, and Harry Bridges, C.I.O. director on the west coast, said they believed the article should be reconsidered after copies of the constitution had been distributed to the 500 delegates. Their motion was not acted upon but the meeting was adjourned until tomorrow.

The proposed constitution, which will be given first consideration tomorrow, resembles in many respects that of the A.F. of L.—but gives the central organization more power in some respects and more dues per member.

A per capita tax assessment of five cents a month on the membership of national and international union was proposed, compared with the present two cents per member assessment of similar units of the A.F. of L. which includes a special assessment of one cent.

Members of local industrial unions, with charters resembling the "federal" charter issued by the A.F. of L. would be taxed 5 cents a month compared with 35 cents by the federation.

The federation's executive council has the power to suspend national and international unions, as it did the eight big unions which formed the C.I.O. three years ago, but only the C.I.O.'s convention would have the authority to suspend or expel one of its unions.

The C.I.O.'s executive board will have 45 members. The A.F. of L. board has 15.

14-Minute Demonstration

The convention staged a 14-minute demonstration after adopting without dissent the officers' reports which included the declaration "with finality" of "no compromise" in peace negotiations.

The cheers lasted so long that Chairman John L. Lewis, who had turned the gavel over to Vice-Chairman Philip Murray during the day interrupted to say:

"Don't you know up to now you've been applauding a dictator? Don't you think the C.I.O. is merely a dictatorship, and that the chairman of it is himself up in office without your will?"

"We love it" some one in the back of the flag decked hall yelled.

The eight-page "peace" committee report blamed the A.F. of L. for the labor breach and reviewed the unsuccessful negotiations between committees of the rival unions late in 1937.

Without one word of opposition, more than a dozen of the C.I.O. leaders marched to the speakers' stand and urged adoption of the report, so, as Van A. Bittner, regional director of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee said, the meeting could get down to "the paramount question x x x of organizing the unorganized workers."

Michael Quill, of New York, president of the Transport Workers Union, urged adoption of the report because he feared the sessions, which opened yesterday, might turn "into a walling wall for peace."

Sidney Hillman, president of the big clothing workers union and one of Lewis' closest advisers, asserted the C.I.O.'s position was no different today than a year ago.

Baby Tumbles Into Pail of Scalding Water and Dies

Pittsburgh, Nov. 15 (AP)—Elaine, 11-months-old only child of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holmes, tumbled down the back stairs of her home into a pail of scalding water tonight and was burned fatally.

Holmes was treated for scalds on his hands, received as he dragged the child from the water.

Legion Enrollment Will Set New High

Record Breaking Membership for Next Year is Forecast

Indianapolis, Nov. 15 (AP)—American Legion officials forecast a record breaking enrollment for 1939 tonight after the 38 departments reported 531,823 advance memberships at the annual telegraphic roll call.

The advance enrollment exceeded last year's roll call figures by 88,473. The figure a year ago was a new record.

Departments of Arkansas, Georgia, Hawaii, Louisiana, Mexico and Wisconsin reported they already have reached their membership quotas.

The reports were made at the annual conference of department commanders and adjutants.

The commanders and adjutants also heard Richard Hartshorne of New Jersey, chairman of the national law and order committee, report that more than half the states in the country have enacted into law within the last two years, one or more points of the Legion's four point crime prevention program.

Those four laws are the uniform act for the fresh pursuit of criminals by police across state lines; the uniform extradition act to bring about return of criminals for trial more promptly a similar act to remove witnesses across state lines in criminal proceedings, and the act for supervision of interstate parolees and probationers.

President Has No Successor in Mind at Present

Suggested Court Reorganizes

Cummings was credited with suggesting to President Roosevelt the Court Reorganization bill which led to the long and bitter controversy in the Senate last year and the first setback for the administration on a major legislative proposal.

The tall, bespectacled Attorney General was active in the fight for the measure and was the first witness in behalf of it to appear before the Senate Judiciary Committee.

There have been reports, however, that he has not always seen eye-to-eye with the president on administrative measures and is accounted a "conservative" by some New Deal advisers.

This fall he endorsed Senator Augustine Lonergan (D-Conn.), who was sometimes critical of the administration, for re-election. Lonergan won the State Democratic Convention's nomination, but was defeated in the election by John A. Danaher, Republican.

Never Held Elective Office

Cummings length of service exceeds that of any of his 53 predecessors with the exception of William Wirt, who was Attorney General from 1817 to 1829.

Among the accomplishments under his administration, intimates say he is most proud of the legislation dealing with the interstate control of crime. His "Crime Conference" of 1934 made many recommendations which were written into law.

It was under his general direction, too, that the federal bureau of investigation, with its famous team of "G-Men" grew to its present size and became the government's principal weapon against kidnapping and other crimes of interstate giants.

Although active in the Democratic party for many years, Cummings has never held a major elective office.

Arrives in Hollywood

Hollywood, Nov. 15 (AP)—James Roosevelt, who resigned today as secretary to his father, President Roosevelt, may take an executive position with a Hollywood studio, film circles heard tonight.

Young Roosevelt was a guest here last night of Samuel Goldwyn.

He flew here from northern California Monday, it was learned, under the pseudonym of "Jimmy Gallagher."

Reports that he would step into a studio post could not be confirmed, but sources close to Goldwyn admitted "there has been considerable talk of such a thing."

Says Charter Would Govern Council Pay

Isaac Hirsch, wholesale merchant and civic leader, has asked the News to state, in connection with discussion of the city manager plan of government in the City Council, that the salaries of councilmen under the plan would be governed by the provisions of the city charter.

That could specify the salaries or empower the council to fix them. The salaries might be the same as they are today, he said.

Duck Hunter is Drowned, Rabbit Hunters Wounded

William Dinsmore of Perry Point Falls From Motor Launch

Edward Hart and Joseph Fitz Shot While Rabbit Hunting

Perry Point, Md., Nov. 15 (AP)—One hunter drowned and two others accidentally peppered each other with buckshot today—the first of the duck hunting season in eastern Maryland.

William Dinsmore, 19, the son of Howard Dinsmore, an attendant at the Perry Point Veterans hospital, fell from a motor launch and was drowned in the Susquehanna river near the hospital.

Other members of the hunting party said they left Dinsmore in the motor boat while they rowed to where several ducks had been shot down. They heard him shout and saw him fall overboard. Dressed in boats and heavy hunting clothes, Dinsmore is believed to have gone down immediately.

Hospital attendants began to drag for his body.

Edward Hart, 21, and Joseph Fitz, 18, both of Stemmers Run in Baltimore County aimed and fired simultaneously at a rabbit near Poplar. Both were in line of fire from the other's shotgun. Both were treated at Johns Hopkins hospital where they were taken by Policeman Clarence Eaton of Essex.

Fitz was treated for a wound over the left eye and was detained in the hospital's eye clinic for further treatment. Hart was treated for wounds in both legs and permitted to leave.

A mile wind and bright sunshine favored duck hunters along the flats bordering the Susquehanna river, one of the most favored grounds in the East.

Shoogans barked along the entire bar area, along swamps and waterways in Frederick and other western counties.

Goering Said to Resent Wave of Nazi Violence

Wilson will leave for Washington Thursday.

Official Nazi spokesmen, informed of the plan of Joseph P. Kennedy, United States ambassador to London, to move most of Germany's 600,000 remaining Jews to new lands, commented, "fine, let them get on with it. The more the better."

A definite note of surprise and indignation over the proportions of the criticism abroad in the wake of last week's anti-Semitic outbreaks and subsequent measures ending Jewish participation in national life was struck in the German press.

Why Problem Came to Head

A foreign office mouthpiece, the Deutsche Diplomatich Politische Korrespondenz, took note of the feeling and issued a summary of the Jewish situation with the observation that "it is all too soon forgotten how and why the problem came to a head."

The Korrespondenz asserted that world Jewry greeted the Nazi assumption of power with "an open fight against the German people."

Jews, ordered to keep out of theaters, followed by secret police, expelled from schools and fearing further restrictive decrees, have been ordered to pay for damage done to their property last week and face a collective fine of $400,000.

It became known that one wealthy Berlin Jew, the owner of a department store, was assessed 1,000,000 marks ($400,000) by the Jewish community organization as his part of the levy for last week's damages.

Break Before Women's Pleas

The staff of the United States consulate was almost at the end of its endurance after five days of attempting to solace frantic Jews who sought comfort and safety near the American flag.

The lines of Jews and others seeking immigration visas or other help have extended often far out into the street before the consulate. Consulates of other nations have besieged likewise.

"I am through," one consular official said in despair as he emerged for lunch with several compatriots.

"Just as I was leaving, two mothers plaintively held their babies up to me.

"For God's sake, give us visas so we can find our husbands," they said. That was the final straw. It got me."

Hitherto one refuge for Jews after they had stood for hours before the United States consulate was a large, comfortable tea room in the building occupied by the consular officials. But this was eliminated as a haven today when a sign was put reading, "Jews not wanted."

Adding to the despair of some Jewish parents was their difficulty in finding their sons under new decrees. Jewish educational homes have been dissolved and boys in them have been taken away.

Boys Sent to Frontiers

At the experimental farm for Jewish boys at Neudorf, near Berlin, where training in farming and gardening was offered, the entire student body of 50 was seized and sent to fortifications on a frontier reliable sources said.

Calls Off All Debts; Banks on G.O.P. for Prosperity's Return

Carbondale, Pa., Nov. 15 (AP)—Charles Stanski, Jr., tossed away his old account books today and wiped out the debts of all customers of his neighborhood grocery store.

"I believe the Republicans are going to bring back prosperity in a hurry," he commented.

Lindbergh Seeking German Residence

To Spend Winter With Nazi to Further Research Work

Berlin, Nov. 15 (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was described today by German friends as finding the Reich such a center for scientific aviation research that he wished to spend the winter in Berlin provided he could get suitable living quarters.

With this in view he left his plane here when he departed from Berlin in October 29.

Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering conferred one of the highest German decorations on Lindbergh October 19 at a party given by Hugh R. Wilson, United States ambassador.

Lindbergh's German friends were particularly anxious to find a house with a garden for him so his two small sons might have a place to play.

The secretary said 275,000,000 acres should produce sufficient crops to supply the nation's domestic requirements and "all possible export markets" and provide an adequate reserve.

The 1938 goal will be divided among various crops and then allotted to farmers. Growers may comply with, or ignore, their allotments, but in order to be eligible for maximum subsidy payments they must comply. In addition, they must plant land diverted from soil-depleting crops to those classed as soil-building, such as clover, alfalfa, other legumes and pasture crops.

Except for wheat, peanuts and certain types of tobacco, the planting goals for major crops will be about the same as this year. The wheat goal was established at 55,000,000 acres compared with 62,500,000 last year. The large reduction was made because of this year's surplus-producing crop.

The cotton goal was fixed at between 27,000,000 and 29,000,000 acres compared with a normal cotton acreage of about 40,000,000. There is a near-record surplus of cotton.

President Says He Can Hardly Believe Reports

freedom, he said, has the solidarity between all American republics and Canada been stronger. He made it plain that he expected that there would be no defection from this policy.

No Protest To Berlin

In commenting on German Anti-Semitism, the President adopted the rare procedure of permitting direct quotation of a statement which officials characterized as highly important because a comment from the head of a nation of internal developments in another nation is an extraordinary occurrence.

President Roosevelt said no protest was being made yet to Berlin against the Persecution of the Jews. Asked whether his use of the word yet indicated a protest at some future date he said he could not comment further.

Moral Quarantine

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—A virtual moral quarantine of Nazi Germany by the United States because of harsh Anti-Jewish measures in the Reich appears to be a possibility now that Ambassador Hugh R. Wilson has been called home from Berlin.

While Wilson was summoned nominally to report and consult, the implications of a potential severance of diplomatic relations with Germany in direct humanitarian protest are so strong as to suggest to observers that Washington is inviting other nations, particularly those of the Pan-American Family, to follow suit.

The Insurgents reported they had broken through the last government lines on the right or west bank of the Ebro to capture Asco, 12 miles northeast of Gandesa. Then they moved on to take Flix, three miles to the north.

Meanwhile, additional forces under General Juan Yague entered the outskirts of Ribarroja, three miles west of Flix, described as the last government stronghold on the Ebro's west bank.

Military reports reaching Irún said the Insurgent victory resulted in death of more than 500 Barcelona militiamen who attempted to cross the river in boats and rafts.

The New Spending Theme

THE NEW CONGRESS is going to have a hard job on its hands in trying to curb the spending proclivities of our president. We have been advised from authoritative quarter that this will be an uphill fight because Mr. Roosevelt is digging in on the high hill of national defense, the melody of which, as one writer notes, is being developed into an orchestral effect.

There is no getting around the fact that there is, as pointed out by the Morgantown, W. Va., Post, one conspicuously consistent streak in Mr. Roosevelt's public career, and it is that he is a spender. He always has been a spender and he has been a big spender. He was such when he was governor of New York, having left behind him when he left Albany for Washington the biggest deficit in the history of the Empire state, and the world record has been broken by him since he has been in the White House.

Now, as the Post says, "Mr. Roosevelt is smart enough to see that the tide of public sentiment has been turning for several months against the mounting expenditures of the Federal Government. He ought to be smart enough to know, after the Nov. 8 election, that he cannot continue as the Biggest Spender of Them All unless he finds some new justification for spending."

World conditions considered, then, what is the most logical excuse, or theme, to adopt as a justification for continued big spending? Natural defense, the Post says, because it is most likely that the American people can always be persuaded to spend liberally for this on an adequate scale. But, as the Post points out, there are two quite different propositions involved in this, sufficiently important to require the line of demarcation to be clearly drawn during the next few months.

"One proposition," says the Post, "is a sufficient appropriation of federal funds to give the United States an adequate national defense. There will be little or no opposition to policies intended to achieve that objective.

The other proposition is the adoption of a program of spending in the grand manner primarily to permit the New Deal to pour out additional billions of the taxpayers' money with national defense no more than a pretext for that spending. Such a program ought to be opposed vigorously, discriminately, and courageously.

"Just as it has been difficult for the last five and a half years to combat prodigal spending in the name of relief, so will it be difficult to restrict national defense expenditures to a reasonable volume.

"Naturally, the professional spokesmen for the Army and Navy will have many arguments to offer why Congress should greatly increase appropriations for our military forces, and when these arguments are buttressed by the influence of an Administration determined to continue spending, Congress and public sentiment will be put to a real test in winnowing the wheat from the chaff.

"The slogan ought to be: 'Every dollar that is actually needed for an adequate national defense, but not a penny beyond that for the mere satisfaction of an administration that can find happiness only when it is breaking all records for spending tax money'."

But, to make that slogan effective will be, as stated, a tough, hard, uphill fight against the presidential spending proclivities, to curb which as they should be curbed there is but one adequate remedy. That is to get him out of his cashier's chair as soon as possible.

AAA Revision Now Probable

AN OUTSTANDING FEATURE of the recent shift of public sentiment on national management was that recorded at the recent elections in the country's largest wheat state on the Wallace-Roosevelt farm policies. Senator George McGill, one of the authors of the present AAA law, was decisively defeated by the Republican nominee, Clyde M. Reed, a thorough opponent of the Wallace panaceas.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, in his Kansas speeches, said votes against McGill would be "in effect votes against the Agricultural Adjustment Administration." They were!

In a prior test on the same issue, it will be recalled, Senator James P. Pope was defeated for renomination in the Idaho Democratic primary. Pope was a joint author of the revival of rigid restriction and arbitrary power over farmers; McGill and Pope were the chief Senate defenders of the New Deal farm programs, as to all except the cotton sections.

It is not only desirable but necessary, that the fantastic farm schemes—pouring millions into what President Roosevelt himself called a "bottomless pit"—producing their promised results in neither fat nor lean crop years—be reconsidered and radically revised. That it becomes an early probability is among the most substantial encouragements the election has provided. Farm subsidization must be placed on a common sense footing, with due regard shown to the Government's capacity to pay them.

Mapping Paradise

WHERE was the starting point of the human race? Scripture places it in Asia Minor; the opinions of scientists are as diverse and many as there are scientists. The newest drawing of the first map of the world advances the theory that the cradle of mankind was in Central Africa. This belief is expounded by Alonzo W. Pond, archeologist and anthropologist, who says that in the Sahara have been found stone tools believed to be 500,000 years old. Somewhere in the Sahara or farther south in the dark continent, he says, science eventually may find the place of the dispersal of man, the beginning of the spread of homo sapiens through the Barbary States, where food was abundant, to Europe and Asia by way of the Nile, Asia Minor and Gibraltar.

This avenue of scientific research is well-worn by savants and probably will be for thousands of years to come, one remarkable discovery contradicting another. No doubt the endeavor is praiseworthy and serves some good purpose, but the fact remains that there are millions of persons busy about other things and content in the belief that the Garden of Eden was in what we call Palestine; still others string along with Mark Twain who settled the matter to his own satisfaction, once and for all, when he wrote two little books which set Adam and Eve right down in the middle of the Niagara frontier.

Show of Spirit

THE PROMOTERS of the World's Fair announce that Czechoslovakia will adhere to its originally expressed purpose to have an inclusive national exhibit. Czechoslovakia, according to announcement, finds that, all things considered, it seems feasible to go ahead with its World's Fair plans. Public interest naturally attaches to the notification to contractors by Dr. Jar Polivka, engineer, that Czechoslovakia's pavilion of exhibit will be about forty-five feet shorter than contemplated in the original design. There seems to be something rather wistful about that.

After submitting to a major operation by Herr Doctor Hitler, Czechoslovakia has no unduly great expectations of putting up a front at the World's Fair, but it evidently is still strong for a show of spirit. The show must go on, as life must go on, is the dismembered republic's attitude, whatever its consideration of this being a fair world.

Incidentally, broken-up China also is proceeding with its plans for representation at the exposition; perhaps sharing in Czechoslovakia's plucky view that, however little a nation may have left to lose, it may always have something considerable left to gain in the matter of other nations' good will.

Hopping the Pond

CALLING the Atlantic Ocean the "Big Pond" used to be thought smart talk. But the epithet is plausible when it becomes possible to set out from New York after dinner in the evening and to lunch in Paris the next day.

An American transatlantic airplane company announces that within a few months its twenty-passenger planes will be making the Big Pond crossing in eighteen to twenty hours. And they will be carrying mail and freight.

What a contrast to the days when the voyage required a couple of months! The times do not seem auspicious, but peace-loving folks will cling to the hope that eventually this bringing of peoples closer together will foster the spirit of neighborliness.

The Duke of Kent has been named governor general of Australia, and the Duke of Windsor is in line for a like appointment in the Near East. Gradually Great Britain is conquering its unemployment problem.

Scientists are working on a meter that measures the intensity of odors. Respectfully suggested as guinea pigs in the experiment are some of the jokes lately heard on the air.

The German minority in a foreign part never knows at what hour the command will come from home, "On and after Monday next, you are dissatisfied."

Fred Haney, newly-signed pilot of the St. Louis Browns, has had no major league experience. Sounds like taking advantage of a stranger.

There is only one closet in President Roosevelt's new dream cottage at Hyde Park. The president isn't making any allowances for skeletons.

A doctor says twenty per cent of the population of the world is insane. We didn't have any idea that many people bought football pools.

The survival of the fittest idea is denied by Venus de Milo, the little gal who has managed to get along all these years without arms.

What Kind of Women

Do You Like?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

"What kind of women do you like?" I asked a friend of mine.

"I'll tell you," said he. "That's a question any man will answer eagerly. He has plenty of ideas on that subject, if on no other."

"I like nearly all women, but some more than others." (Just as I like nearly all men with but a few exceptions.)

"My liking for women isn't basically related to their physical appearance. That may attract me but it has little to do with my respect and friendship." (Once I was "crazy" about a young woman whom I really didn't like at all.)

"I like women who like men, but I don't like women who have no feeling of sex solidarity and friendship." (Once I was "crazy" about a young woman whom I really didn't like at all.)

"I like women who are intelligent, but I don't like those dominating, arrogant women."

"I like gentle women, but I don't like those clinging-vine, hundred-percent feminine women. A little clinging goes a long way with me."

"I like witty women, but not those bright, brittle women who spend most of their wit at the expense of men." (No man does.)

"I like mothers, but I don't like mothers who can't talk of anything else but their children, any more than I can like women who are too selfish to have children."

"I like women with a dash of ego in their dispositions, but I don't like women who are too inconsistent that women are superior to men." (A man prefers to admit that for himself, not to be TOLD that, and he prefers his own kind of ego, anyway.)

"I like women who think of something else besides their clothes, women who listen when they ask questions, who are glad to be alive, who are good sports—who are essentially WOMANLY."

"I agree with every word you say," said I. "You took the words right out of my mouth."

Fair Enough

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Nobody appreciates the doctor's service to mankind more than your correspondent, but this essay will admit that the defense of the profession in the case of the Philadelphia woman who bore a baby unattended after several doctors had declined to assist sounds more like a plea of guilty than vindication.

Several professional bleeding hearts broke down and bawled over the tragedy of this rather celebrated mishap, not in honest sympathy for the unfortunate woman and the bairn, but in propaganda for collective medicine. The American Medical Assn. investigated, and now presents its own account of the case with a note of satisfaction which is not justified by the facts.

The account says: — "Sunday morning, October 22, at 7 o'clock, the patient was delivered of a six or seven-months' still-birth at a rooming house to which she went only about an hour before. Her home address is not known, and she was in labor on arrival at the rooming house.

Sunday Is a Day of Rest

"She had previously been taken to two hospitals by a roomer and had been examined and refused admittance because she was not registered in either as a patient. One of the roomers called the sergeant at the police station, who failed to call the district physician because he said he did not wish to disturb him on Sunday. The roomer then tried to reach five different doctors in the neighborhood. The first was taking a bath, and when he answered the doorbell no one was there. He reported that he had not taken care of an obstetrics case in thirty years.

"The second doctor, a specialist in diseases of the eye, was asleep and did not answer the doorbell. The third does not practice obstetrics but offered to send an ambulance. This offer was refused. The sergeant telephoned hospital, and the assistant chief resident offered to call on the woman if the police would send a car. On his arrival he found the patient and the dead infant. He administered treatment and left instructions to call the hospital if further treatment was necessary.

"The patient refused to answer questions, made no statements and disappeared one week later.

"People do impose heartlessly on doctors. This woman had an obligation to make inquiries and arrangements months before. While she was having this wretched experience a lot of habitual indigents far and wide in this country were calling out ambulance doctors to treat them for drunkenness, wakefulness, worry and the itch. But the Journal of the A. M. A. hasn't exonerated the profession in this case. By the Journal's own account it was a miserable incident, with strong indications of heartlessness at the two hospitals where a mere paper-work formally excluded a desperate, penniless person.

SIX WAYS TO LOSE HIM If She's Not a Home-Maker . . .

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority On Problems of Love and Marriage, Copyright 1938

Some women are neither domestic nor maternal. Something vital has been left out of their composition. It's not their fault. It's only sad to think how much they are missing.

"Every school boy knows," as Macaulay used to say, that the maternal instinct has pulled the human race up from the cave to the porcelain bathtub, and the balanced ration, cooked by electricity.

Men would have kept right on eating raw mastodons and dragging their mates off by the hair, if it were not for that devouring flame, in the heart of nearly every woman to make life better for her children.

It was the cave-woman who first tanned skins, to keep her babies warm. She made pottery in which to cook and preserve their food. She planted wild seeds which, through long processes of evolution, have given us today's bread-making grain.

When She Loses

So, when a girl lacks this most civilizing of influences, she has lost the thing which really makes her count as a woman.

She has her counterpart in the man whose home is anywhere he hangs his hat, and he too regards children as a menace. If men and women who lack the fundamental urge to mate, make homes, and rear children, will only wait for each other, they will be infinitely happier than if they mated with the normal home-loving, child-loving

A little while ago a girl wrote to this column that she was tempted to marry, but disliked children. If memory serves, my answer to her letter was if she were a normal woman she would probably love the children intensely, after they appeared.

Now comes a letter from a lady who thinks she has a more accurate reply to the girl's question than the one I wrote. The reply reveals a woman, so devoid of the maternal instinct, that I'm giving part of it verbatim:

Disliked "Brats"

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
"I too am fond of the child now—after a fashion—but how much more satisfactorily I could have lived without it. Please, please, I beg of you, recognize the established fact that all women who biologically may become mothers, may NOT have the maternal feeling. Being a happy and adequate mother is a career in itself.

"Would you advise a reader to study and assume a career, in which she knew beforehand, she had no interest? The small percentage of women who think they do not want children and have them anyway, only to discover they do feel differently is too small to justify the risk. The percentage of such women who have children and make good mothers, is smaller still.

BORED MOTHER."

The letter gave the writer's views at much greater length which we haven't space to print. It does, of course, give a perfect picture of a woman bereft of the maternal instinct. But if this mother were to lose the child, she speaks of so casually, she would realize, I believe, how empty life would be without this little one. That tragedy has happened many times. Here's hoping this mother may never experience the sorrow of knowing, too late, what her child means to her.

Girl, 21, Has No Freedom
DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I have a very lovely mother.

him so? Do you suppose he's jealous of the other boys who dance with me? I'm so unhappy.

But all of a sudden he's changed his tactics—now he doesn't sit out any more, but cuts in on all the pretty girls, and seems to have a glorious time. I don't mind it when he dances with our girl friends, but when he picks up strangers, it just burns me up.

READ THIS FIRST

Sara Sue Davis, attractive young widow, establishes herself in a cozy cottage near the campus of Rice Institute. She has painted out a sign which reads "COUNSEL" on the door and inaugurates a novel plan to help guide 100 student "members" in their social activities. Peaches Pomeroy, the local campus football hero, is much attracted by Sara Sue, is the first to enroll, and this enrages Peaches Pomeroy, who had been interested in Bob's girl the previous year. An unpracticed freshman, Worthington Gurley, enrolls and also displays an interest in the pretty young widow. Thornton Holgate, new member of the faculty, brings the Cottage Plan to a climax. He begs Sara Sue to help him and confides his love for the pretty girl. Finally, T. J. Sanders, a sports goods salesman, drops into town and Sara Sue is the first to notice him at first sight. After Sara Sue has given Dr. Cannon several lessons in "how to become more human," he becomes frantic at the freshman's behavior. Peaches Pomeroy, Peaches body intoxicated. For hours he lies awake, tortured by Peaches' publishing. The next day, while walking with some of the students, Thornton Holgate is confronted by Peaches and two other girls in a passing car. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 22

IT IS AN unusual case when a normal, wholesome, young American man can grow to age almost 29 and never once have had a girl sit on his lap. Thornton Holgate had been in "love" several times in high school, but had done nothing about it. A few times, in school assemblies, it had been necessary for him to pair off with some feminine person, and a very few times sufficient pressure had been brought to make him actually take a girl somewhere. But mostly he had been content to admire the opposite sex from afar. It had always seemed presumptuous for a person as humble as he imagined himself to be, to force any girl to pay attention to him.

He grew out of that inferiority complex to a degree when he entered college. The Right Girl at that moment doubtless would have reshaped his entire life, but she did not come along. Before he realized it, college studies had gripped his enthusiasm; mathematics under truly learned men had opened magnificent mental vistas in which human equations had no part.

He beheld the sudden appearance of Peaches Pomeroy in her car this Sunday afternoon, heard her greeting and her command to get in, then passed into a momentary dream. When he was reawakened, a somewhat heavy but soft and thoroughly delightful something was implanted upon him. He was learning that its name was Barbara, that the similar something at his left shoulder was named Lisbeth. Both objects, besides being sweetly perfumed, were wiggly and giggly and highly articulate. And Miss Pomeroy's sedan was moving at something above 60.

"Yes, yes, quite so," Thornton was saying, solely because it seemed advisable to say something, after the deluge of greeting, introductions, small talk. The freshman behind him, busy with their own chatter, paid little attention.

"I know—let's go to Galveston," Peaches had suggested.

"YE-A-A-A-A!" chorused the freshmen in for anything. "Let's!" chimed in the girls. That's when Thornton had collected his wits and said "Yes, yes, quite so."

Peaches swung right through Hermann park and headed for Telephone road, thence on eventually to the main pavement, which finally heads into the great Galveston causeway, a bridge over the sea arm which makes Galveston an island. Sheer fatigue eventually caused Thornton to relax, and the girl Barbara turned on his knees to talk to him.

"Am I too heavy?" I've been gaining scads of weight lately. I'll bet you're smashed to bits."

"Not at all, not at all!" he lied. He was disturbed by the fact that her eyes—very pretty eyes—were less than a foot from his.

Ditto her lips—very pretty lips. Dr. Thornton Holgate, Ph.D., swallowed hard.

"Some of the road's bumpy, Thornton," Peaches called to him. "You'll have to hold Babs tight. But that's all right, she's not bashful. If you get tired, make her hold you on her lap a while."

"Of course it was casual. Joking. But Dr. Holgate blushed, even so. It did cause him to look closely at Peaches—and to turn away because her feminine attraction was

As far as I am concerned, he need never know, but I feel that it is better for me to teach it to him than for him to grow up and have someone else tell him in a way that might hurt him. But when I start to tell him, words fail me. If you know of any good way or know of any literature on this, I would appreciate it if you would send it to me or tell me where I could get it."

Should Tell Child That He's Adopted

But Parents Are Advised by Myers to Do It as Nonchalantly as Possible

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

A reader who, I am happy to note, addresses me as "Dear Friend" writes:

"I read your column every day and enjoy it very much. I have an adopted boy almost three years old. We have had him since he was three days old, and he is as dear to us as our own. Some people think that this is impossible but I am sure that it is not."

"We have been living in this place about six months, and no one here knows that he is adopted. Not that I care that they know, but it has not become necessary that I tell any one. Every one in the town that we moved from knows it. As there are so many adopted children these days, I wish you would write something in your column for the benefit of those who think that adopted children don't mean as much to their parents as their own children do."

"My problem is this: I think my baby is getting old enough to begin to teach him that he is adopted. As far as I am concerned, he need never know, but I feel that it is better for me to teach it to him than for him to grow up and have someone else tell him in a way that might hurt him. COUNTY COMMISSIONERS OF
ALLEGANY COUNTY
$60,000.00 ROAD BONDS
ALLEGANY COUNTY, MARYLAND

The County Commissioners of Allegany County, Maryland, will be in residence to receive said bonds at the office of the County Commissioners of Allegany County on the first day of November, 1938, at 10:00 A. M., on Main Street, in the City of Cumberland, Maryland, at eleven o'clock A. M., Tuesday, November 28th, 1938, for an issue of Allegany County Roads Bonds, ISSUE OF 1938, amounting to SIXTY THOUSAND ($60,000.00) DOLLARS, at which time and place the same will be received by the Clerk of the County Commissioners in the presence of the County Commissioners of Allegany County.

The bonds will be dated November 1, 1938, and will be in coupon form, with the interest thereon payable semi-annually on the first day of May and November, and will bear interest with the principal, regular, as to principal only, and will be issued in the denomination of One Thousand ($1,000.00) Dollars each, and all bonds shall be in the same payable on the first day of November, 1943. The principal and interest thereon will be paid to the County at the office of the Treasurer of Allegany County in Cumberland, Maryland.

Bidders must state in their bids the principal amount of bonds and must state a single rate of interest which all the bonds will be 1% expressed in a multiple of one-fourth of one percent, and the bidder will be awarded the bonds per annum. Unless all bids are received as many of the bonds as have been bid for will be awarded for cash to the respective bidder, and the bidder will withdraw this advertisement and submitting bids which, after computation, provide the lowest cost to the County on the whole number of bonds, and the bidder will be paid computed by deducting the amount of any premium bid for said bonds from the total amount of bonds which the County will have paid for said bonds, and the terms of the bid; provided, however, the prices so bid are adequate and most advantageous to the County and the County Commissioners of Allegany County.

These bonds are authorized by Chapter 17 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland, 1938, and are exempt from all taxation in Maryland.

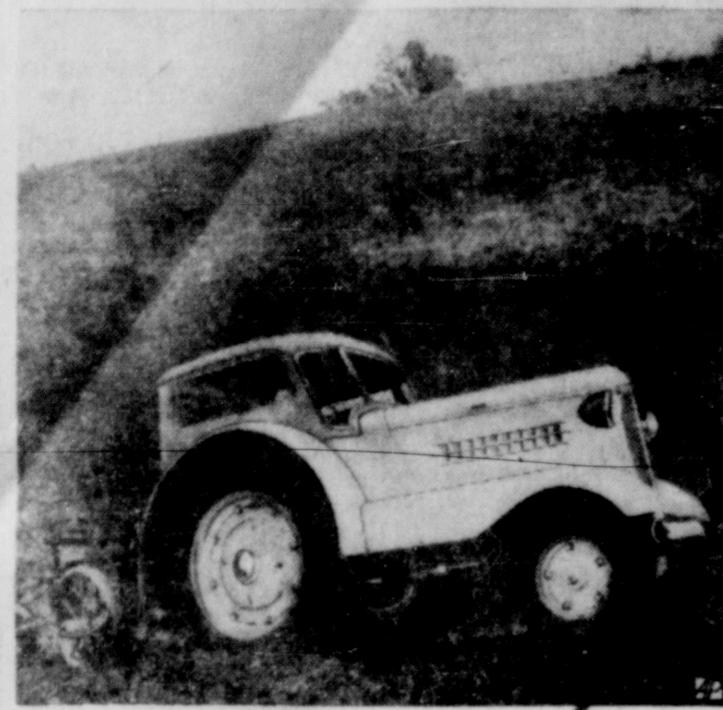

Bids may be made for all or any part of the issue. Each bid must be accompanied by an order drawn on an incorporated bank or trust company for an amount equal to the per cent. 1% of the face value of the amount of bonds bid, payable to the County Treasurer of Allegany County. Such check shall be and become the property of Allegany County at liquidated damages upon the payment of the principal bonds, to the successful bidder, and accrued interest at the rate borne by the bond from the date of the bonds to the date of payment.

All bids, together with the security deposits, must be sealed and indorsed "Bid for Bonds" and inclosed in a sealed envelope addressed to the County Commissioners of Allegany County, Cumberland, Maryland.

The County Commissioners reserve the right to accept or not accept any bid.

New Tractor Gives the Farmer All the Comforts of a Limousine

Here's one of the new tractors that helps make farming a pleasure. Equipment includes a cigar lighter.

By PAUL D. SHOEMAKER
AP Farm Editor

Minneapolis—They're making life easier for the farmer.

When he's driving the tractor now he can laugh at the weather. An implement company here (Minneapolis-Moline Power Implement Co.) not only is putting cabs on new tractors; it's streamlining and air-cooling them.

Here's what a new model, capable of pulling a three or four-bottom plow, is equipped with:

Controlled temperature in the cab through a hot water heater and air circulation.

Windows of shatterproof glass and a rear vision mirror.

Seats with back rests and sponge rubber cushions.

Other features are: windshield wipers, electric headlights, electric starter, radio, electric horn and a front bumper. The instrument panel encloses a speedometer, ammeter, oil pressure gauge and water temperature gauge. The tractor has five forward speeds and can travel from a crawl up to 40 miles an hour. It has the conventional power-take-off and power on belt features.

And to top it all, the cab is equipped with an automatic cigar lighter.

Broke His Leg Rescuing Cow

Belvidere, Ill., (AP)—One of Walter Gray's steers tried to leap a fence and alighted astride it.

Gray grabbed the steer's tail and attempted to pull the animal off. The fence and steer collapsed on Walter and broke his leg.

G. O. P. Counts On Governors To Help Prepare It For '40

By the AP Feature Service

A national political party looks to state organizations for much of its strength. That's one big reason why the election results this time pleased Republicans. For the party had seven governors before the elections, 18 afterward. True, it lost California and Maryland, and failed to gain New York. But elsewhere it more than offset these defeats. Here are some of the new governors, winners in important contests, on whom the party counts for help in preparing for 1940:

FRANK D. FITZGERALD OF MICHIGAN

PAYNE H. RATNER OF KANSAS

Has 114 Descendants

Prestonsburg, Ky. (AP)—Death of Mrs. Nevesta Stephens Blackburn recently left 114 direct descendants. They included eleven children, forty grandchildren, 53 great-grandchildren. Mrs. Blackburn was 86.

Establishment of Business Men's Bureau at Frostburg Projected

Representative of Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce Offers to Make Free Survey of City

Frostburg Briefs

Frostburg, Nov. 15.—Tentative plans for the establishment of a firmly organized Business Men's Bureau in Frostburg were given encouragement today when Henry W. Stanley, of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, who conducted a two days merchandising clinic here, offered to make a survey of the community and submit his findings without cost as a basis on which to determine what the majority of residents consider the greatest needs of the community. Mr. Stanley made his offer at the noon luncheon of the Business Men's Bureau held at the Gunter Hotel.

Matters suggested by those attending the luncheon that might with profit to the entire community engage the attention of a well organized Business Bureau included the establishment of monthly economy sales by all the merchants of the community, assisting the Allegany Rifle League in having a rifle range established in this section of Allegany county, cooperating with the Maryland Bureau of Mines in having state-wide first aid meets held at regular intervals in Frostburg for the enjoyment of teams representing coal and utility corporations and other institutions, and requesting the State Board of Education to establish a summer school for teachers at State Teachers' College.

Want Summer School

It was pointed out in connection with the summer school proposal that the summer school sponsored by the school authorities several years ago at State Teachers' College attracted some of the most prominent educators in the country to this community as well as a large number of teachers, all of whom expressed delight with the climate, the scenic beauty of the surrounding country and the hospitality of the people of Allegany county.

The Business Men's Bureau, as at present organized, decided to sponsor Community Christmas decorations for Main street and will undertake to collect sufficient funds to finance the project.

A five point promotional plan was discussed and will likely be adopted by the bureau. The plan includes a January Clearance Sale, spring and fall fashion show and a spring and fall clearance sale, all conducted as community projects in addition to the monthly Economy Sales Day program.

To Contact Business Men

A majority of the business men attending today's session of the Merchandising Clinic urged that every business and professional man in the community be solicited and urged to contribute monthly to a Business Men's Bureau strong enough financially to engage the services of a manager to keep the organization constantly active and be of value to the city.

Tucker Man Jailed For Shooting Girl And Her Father

James Lambert is Said To Have Admitted Firing Shots

James Lambert is said to have admitted firing shots.

Parsons, W. Va., Nov. 15.—James Lambert, of near Mill Creek, was jailed for grand jury action on a charge of shooting Hughe Shifflett and his daughter, Pearl. Justice Luther Lewis said Lambert was arrested on a warrant issued by him after Lambert admitted the shooting. Neither of the parties was injured seriously by the shot. Justice Lewis said the girl's father was hit in the neck by one of the shots and the girl received several shots in the back.

The girls competing are: Margaret Durst, ninth grade; Phillips Cunningham, eighth grade; and Jean Shillingburg, seventh grade.

Entertainment will include blackface skit under the direction of Robert Miller; dance numbers directed by Miss Verlys Dixon; cowboy numbers and tricks of magic, the Robertson Brothers.

Various committee heads for the affair are: lunch, Mrs. Gertrude Davis; cake table, Miss Mary E. Manley; candy, Mrs. Edward Smith, president of the P. T. A.; grabbag, Mrs. Jessie Smith.

Recount Will Be Held of School Bond Votes

County court officials announced today that a recount of votes cast last Tuesday in the school bond issue would be held Friday night.

The school bond issue carried by 144 majority. This result has been demanded by Attorney Alan G. Bolton and George Keagle, of Thomas.

The board of education met last night in joint session with the county court and canvassed eight of the precincts, then completed the canvass today. They had planned to do something definite about new school houses until confronted with the demand for a recount of votes, so delayed any building program until their next meeting.

Stocks Cancel Early Losses and List Closes Near Top for the Day

Brighter Domestic Outlook Bolsters Market

New York, Nov. 15. (AP) — The brighter domestic outlook tended to offset uneasiness over foreign affairs in today's stock market and leading issues in the final hour reduced or cancelled early declines running to 2 or more points.

Steels, aircrafts and specialties led the comeback, with number closing behind plus signs. Most motors, utilities, rails, coppers, mail orders and farm implements were moderately in arrears. There were a few high-priced stocks down 2 to 3 points.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues was off .5 of a point at 53.1. Transfers totalled 1,465,980 shares against 1,651,280 the day before.

On the declining side were International Harvester, Consolidated Edison, Westinghouse, Johns-Manville, U. S. Gypsum, Sears Roebuck, International Nickel, Santa Fe and General Electric.

Consolidated Aircraft was up 2 to 5 at 24 1-4 and Boeing gained 1 5-8 at 30 3-8. Moderately improved were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Omnibus Corp., N. Y. City Omnibus, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit, Hiram Walker, U. S. Rubber and Newport Industries.

Fractions to around a point lower in the curb were Newmont Mining, Electric Bond & Share, American Cyanamid "B" and Lake Shore. Small gainers included Gulf Oil and Creole Petroleum. Turnover of 209,000 shares compared with 254,000 Monday.

New York, Nov. 15 (AP) — The middleweights, the welterweights and the light-heavies came in for attention today as the New York State Athletic Commission held a busy weekly meeting to take steps toward settling matters in the title brackets of these divisions.

By classes, this is what was accomplished:

Middleweights: the commission accepted checks of $2,000 each from Fred Apostoli of San Francisco and Young Corbett III of Fresno, Calif., as evidence of their "good intentions" to meet for the 160-pound title New York version, in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Welterweights: Commission physicians — Dr. William Walker and Dr. George Howley — examined Henry Armstrong's sacro-iliac joint and cut lip by way of exercises and bending tests, and pronounced him fit for the defense of his title against Ceferino Garcia, Nov. 25.

Light-heavyweights: with the fist-fathers looking on, Al Gainer of New Haven, Conn., and Tiger Jack Fox of Spokane, Wash., and New York, signed contracts for a 15-round bout in the Bronx Coliseum Nov. 29 for the first bout of an elimination series to name a successor to John Henry Lewis as light-heavyweight king. The winner will meet Melio Bettina of Beacon, N. Y., either Dec. 20 or 29 in Madison Square Garden or the Hippodrome in the elimination final for the title the commission took away from Lewis a few months ago.

In addition to accepting forfeit money from Apostoli and Corbett, the stock sojourns also took a $2,500 check from promoter Mike Jacobs for his "good intentions" in putting on the show. Then they invited Sally Krieger and his manager, Johnny Caplin, to appear at next Tuesday's meeting to sign to fight the winner. Krieger recently won some claim to the title by whipping Al Hostak in Seattle, but the commission, having refused recognition of Hostak, did the same for Krieger and nominated the Apostoli-Corbett party as for the crown.

Armstrong had slipped his sacro-iliac joint — which is like stripping a gear on your car — on Nov. 1, the night before his originally scheduled date with Garcia.

Ducky Pond's Woes
at 'Shocked' Stage

Scout Reports Elis May Lose to Harvard by 40 Points

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 15 (AP) — Ducky Pond's miseries and woes, bad enough, reached the "shocked" stage today. Yale's football boss, hoping to salvage something out of the Elis' worst football season since 1915 by upsetting Harvard here Saturday, learned from a scout that the Crimson "might win by 40, 50, or 60 points."

Pond admitting he was "shocked" by scout Walter Levering's report, recovered sufficiently to say:

"I don't expect any such trimmings."

The Yale mentor, working desperately to pep up the squad's discipline, cast down by a series of discouraging breaks including an unexpected setback last week by Princeton, had hoped to get some encouragement from Levering, who has been scouting Harvard all season.

Levering, a former Yale backfield ace, told Pond and his assistants, that personally, he thought the traditional game between the "Big Three" arch rivals would be hard fought, but that the Elis' problem was to "stop Harvard's offense which is 25 percent better than in 1937 and to capitalize on the Crimson's defense which is 50 percent weaker."

Even before Levering reported, Pond's worries were working overtime. Another defeat for Yale, which so far has lost to Columbia, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Dartmouth and Princeton, would give the 1938 team just about the worst ranking in Elis' football history. The Blue has triumphed over Navy and Brown.

Count Arthur is Pimlico Winner
Bowie Handicap

Turns Back Top Ranking
Favorites To Pay
$17 for $2

Baltimore, Nov. 15 (AP) — A one-time cup winner, lately fallen on bad times, turned back ranking favorites in the 26th running of Pimlico's $10,000 added Bowie Handicap today when Mrs. John D. Hertz' Count Arthur scored by a neck and left Esposa and Aneroid out in the cold.

The Count, a veteran six-year old and rankest outsider in the seven-horse race, finished on top to pay $17 after a perfect ride by Johnny Longden, at the moment the No. 1 winning jockey on U. S. tracks.

Aneroid, John A. Manfuso's star five-year old, finished in a dead heat for second with Walter M. Jeffords' Regal Lily, but was disqualified for fouling Esposa a full long from the finish.

Jolly Tar, like Regal Lily, an offspring of the great Man O' War, won third money as the other half of the Jeffords' entry.

Nick Wall, up on Esposa, claimed the foul on Aneroid, asserting the Manfuso horse swerved in front of his mount just inside the furlong pole. Aneroid pulled up lame, which probably caused the swerve, track officials said.

Count Arthur did the mile and five-eighths distance in 2:46, or four-fifths of a second over the mark set by Esposa in 1937. His winnings in the upset totaled $9,400.

The Results

First—Zanana, $5.00, $3.20, $2.50; Gacna, $25.30, $8.90; Balkan War, $2.70.

Second—Bass Wood, $5.10, $3.30, $2.60; Foxshade, $5.00, $3.50; Predestined, $3.60.

Third—Prattier, $3.00, $2.30, $2.30; Promoter, $2.50, $2.70; Claque, $3.20.

Fourth—Kayan, $4.00, $2.90, $2.70; Rissa, $4.30, $3.60; El Paso, $7.00.

Fifth—Pernie, $8.50, $6.50, $3.50; Finance, $6.10, $4.50; Robert L. $3.80.

Once Beaten Pitt,
Lacking Reserves,
Still Grid Giant

Starting Eleven of Panthers Likely Strong as Any in Land

But Blue Devils of Duke
May Again Upset
Bucs

By DILLON GRAHAM
AP Feature Service Writer

New York — Pittsburgh still rides high in the opinion of the country's gridiron experts.

This was shown when football writers voted the Panthers third in national ranking a few days after Pitt had been surprisingly whipped by Carnegie Tech. Only Texas Christian and Notre Dame rated above the Panthers.

In this day of competitive football, with one strong rival following another, it is rare that a team has kept in our own back yard all afternoon but it was gratifying to see how the team worked together to make only two first downs.

Two other pairs were tied for third place with best ball scores of 67. They were Jack Grout of Chicago and Henry Picard with 34-33-67 and Jim Turness of Providence and Jack Patroni of Shawnee, Pa., who were 33-34-67. Patroni finished the final 14 holes five under par with an unbeaten record.

Previously undefeated since October, 1936, Pitt had become synonymous with power so smooth and silent that no single cylinder could be tapped as the key to the power house.

Pitt had accomplished its successes this year without the assistance of powerful reserves with which other Panther teams were blessed and without any aerial attack to speak of.

Pitt's starting eleven likely is as strong as any in the land but the calibre of the reserves is far below that of the veterans starters with 10 seniors in the cast.

The Panthers own possibly the best backfield, a "dream backfield" of all-American Marshall Goldberg, Harold (Curly) Stebbins, Dick Casiano and John Chickenero.

They Get Ideas

This Pitt team is resourceful as well as powerful. For instance, when Wisconsin was pressing hard, Chickenero who never had carried the ball in three years of college football, called his own signal on a fake punt and ran 71 yards for a touchdown. Southern did the same.

Pitt's starting eleven likely is as strong as any in the land but the calibre of the reserves is far below that of the veterans starters with 10 seniors in the cast.

Bob Neyland, Tennessee: That shifting Vandy defense stopped us cold that first half but we were going. That was a close call.

Professor, it's the same old story. You can't make mistakes against Rose Bowl to me. We've got two more to play.

Professor: Wallace, my lad speak up.

Wallace Wade, Duke: Professor, with the return of our injured backs, our defense is becoming better balanced and showed it against Syracuse. But we still look bad against passes.

Ossie Solemn, Syracuse: I'd like to look that bad. Professor I'm glad the score wasn't more than 21-0. That's really a great ball club.

Professor: Far above Cayuga's Waters, tra-la-la...

Carl Shavly, Cornell: Yes sir, professor. I'm here. That Dartmouth team is great. It is a bunch of super-players to beat 'em. My boys were super-men Saturday.

Pitt should finish its campaign with victories, although the Duke Blue Devils may give the Panthers a tough argument.

The chances are that when the teams are rated off the season as a whole Pitt will be right up there in the

To Increase Player Limit From 23 to 25

Exponents of Three Proposals Are Expected to Win

BY PAUL MICKELSON
New York, Nov. 15 (AP) — It certainly wouldn't be asking too much if each baseball club owner from class B and upwards was dunned by his closest university, college or normal school to buy them two or three good football players each spring. Football, next to a world championship, does more for the harried nabor than a barrel of aspirin. A winters cruise or a dozen hunting trips. It calls the wolves off their heels and gives them a chance to come up fresh for a new campaign.

The current season, perhaps the wildest and wooliest since small college teams like Centre and Carleton came out of the woods to smack down the Harvards and the Chicagos, has been a real life saver for the nabor. All of them except the bosses of the New York Yankees, Boston Red Sox and Cincinnati Reds were just about to be nipped by the howling wolves as the season ended. But the pigskin season has been so crazy everybody has clean forgotten the 1938 baseball nightmare. It's been the dullest October-November hot stove season in many a year.

However, the minor and major league meetings are just around the corner and the magnates, freshened up, are ready for plenty of business.

The general problems to be discussed are night baseball, a dead ball and an increase of the player limit from 23 to 25. Exponents of these three proposals are expected to win. Night baseball will be played in at least eight parks, the ball will be deadened and the player limit promises to be hiked after a bitter fight.

This is what the clubs have been doing:

American League

New York—Traded outfielder Myrl Hoag and Catcher Joe Glenn to St. Louis for pitcher Oral Hildebrand. Another big deal expected. No. Joe DiMaggio will not be traded. Club against dead ball, for 25-player limit.

Boston—Still looking for pitchers.

Cleveland—The Indians are ready to get rid of a flock of old hands.

Detroit—They're hot after Cecil Travis of Washington.

Washington—The Nats are reported ready to trade Travis to Detroit but want plenty. Prevailing guess is they want an outfielder, catcher and a pitcher.

Chicago—A cagy crew now. Want a catcher and second baseman.

St. Louis—Fred Haney, the new manager, may try to succeed with rookies.

Philadelphia—Nobody knows what Connie Mack's really after. Connie's been busy insisting he was misquoted when he was supposed to have come out for player vaca-

National League

Chicago—A cinch to make a couple deals, probably with Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh—Chances are Arky Vaughan will stick after all. The more the Pirates see of other players, the more they think of their own ability.

New York—Col. Will Terry is worrying and fretting over his cripes. May get Buddy Hassett from Brooklyn to play first. The Colonel, in mid-season form, threatened to beat a photographer in a Memphis court hearing recently.

Boston—Bob Quinn will some up with a big deal any day now—a deal that should make his Bees very dangerous.

St. Louis—A new manager in Ray Blades, who will make at least three important deals by next spring. No. Dizzy Dean will not be taken back.

Philadelphia—Led by another new manager, Doc Pothro, the Phillies hope to rebuild—with what?

Brooklyn—if you have any new ideas write or wire to Leland Stan fog MacPhail. He's about to run a contest offering a big prize to anyone who can name five out of nine in the 1938 starting lineup.

Loughran Has New 'White Hope' In Hard-Hitting Matt Raymond

Loughran and Raymond; Raymond Shadow-Boxes

By DILLON GRAHAM
AP Feature Service Writer

New York—The pugilistic profession has found a handsome youngster who threatens Joe Louis' tenure as heavyweight champion and Jack Doyle's niche as a matinee idol. He's Matt Raymond of Philadelphia.

"Ah, what a broth of a lad, he is," smiles Tommy Loughran, the former dancing master of the light-heavies, who is piloting him.

Tall, broad-shouldered, curly-haired. Big, sparkling eyes!

Like Joey Archibald New York state's new nominee as featherweight king, Matt is the story book fancy of a boxing champion.

A Scholar!

He could give Gene Tunney two acts of Hamlet—with the Ghost thrown in for good measure—and outshine him as a Shakespearean scholar.

Archibald is a student at Providence college and Matt is a graduate of Duke University. He was known as Ray Matulewicz down south and was a terror in college circles. He won the national inter-collegiate light heavyweight championship in a romp. Loughran changed his name "because Matulewicz is hard to pronounce and it doesn't fit into headlines."

Matt comes from Pennsylvania, is of Polish extraction and writes and speaks Polish.

Loughran thinks he's good enough to beat most of the outstanding heavyweights now but is taking Matt along slowly and cautiously.

Too Eager

"We grabbed at a chance to fight. Tommy Farr but Farr had seen Matt in one fight and wanted no part of him," Loughran said.

"Matt would have murdered him."

Loughran, sliding into the spirit of his eulogy, declared that Matt was a harder puncher now than Louis.

"While Louis waits for his foe to move in and leave an opening, Matt forces the fighting. In fact, he's too eager."

"As a college fighter he went in punching, trying to get it over quickly. You can't do that against most professionals. They're toughened to punches and have to be worn down."

"I've temporarily sacrificed some of his punching power in trying to teach him accuracy, how to shoot for the nose or eye or jaw. When he gets that down we'll get that power back."

He's the coming champion, Loughran promises.

"We'll give Louis another year and then whip him."

Frostburg Crew Defeats Terrors in Soccer Clash

Frostburg, Nov. 15—Frostburg State College's soccer team kicked its way to a 4-2 victory over Western Maryland College yesterday in a Maryland Collegiate Soccer League contest.

The triumph was the third in seven starts this season for Coach George Carrington's Frostburg outfit which will close its season here Saturday morning by meeting University of Virginia booters in a game carded for 10 o'clock. Three defeats and a tie are on the record.

The defensive play of Nordeck and Gnezy was outstanding for Frostburg with Wagner, Meyers, Shuff and Conrad leading the attack. The lineups:

Fro. Frostburg—W. Maryland—2
Goal—Connor ..... Linton
LFB—Sacco ..... Smith
RFB—Woodell ..... Robinson
LHB—Hancock ..... Windham
LCH—Ginger ..... McCall
OL—Meyers ..... Galbreath
OL—Wagner ..... Lewis
IL—Shuff ..... Tomlinson
DR—Conrad ..... Wallace
DR—Rice ..... Elias
OR—Rice ..... Applegarth

Substitute: Frostburg—Morgan.

Field goals—Tomlinson, Wallace, Wagner, Shuff and Conrad. Penalty goals—Meyers.

Col. R. S. Thomas To Confer Here On Flood Control

Surprise Visit Arranged And Announced Yesterday

KEEP REPORTERS OUT, COLONEL TELLS MAYOR

Plan Calling For High Wall Is Under Discussion

Flood control was a problem uppermost in Cumberland's mind again today with Col. R. S. Thomas scheduled to come here from Washington for a conference with Mayor Thomas W. Koon and City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer.

Col. Thomas arranged the conference by telephone yesterday afternoon.

The announcement that he was to be here today came as a surprise, because Mr. Rizer had talked to him by telephone Monday, and it had been agreed then that the mayor and engineer would go to Washington to meet Col. Thomas sometime next week.

The mayor said last night that he could not explain the colonel's unexpected visit.

Reporters Barred

That means that for the time being the public may be kept in the dark as to what money-spending, city-remodeling plan the army engineers may have decided upon now.

It is quite possible, of course, that a communiqué may be issued after the conference making public as many details of the meeting as it is deemed desirable to release.

High Wall Is One Plan

It was understood after Mr. Rizer talked to Col. Thomas Monday, however, that the colonel and his staff were working on a plan to tear down all the buildings between Wills creek and Mechanic street below the Market street bridge and erect a huge flood wall there.

This plan seemed to have been developed since Col. Thomas replaced Major Luplow some months ago, as supervisor of flood control work in this area.

Major Luplow and local officials had developed the $6,000,000 tub plan, whereby Wills creek would have been conducted through the city in huge tubes, with a boulevard running down the creek bed atop the tubes.

Tube Plan Popular

This plan met great favor locally, although its execution would have required a special grant from Congress.

Local officials express concern over what would happen above Market street if a flood wall were erected below there and also fear that any high wall would be unsightly.

With every citizen interested in flood control projects and with even city officials badly confused on what can be done, if anything, Col. Thomas' expected visit is awaited with great concern in all quarters.

Rotarians Help To Prevent War, Says Kirkman

International Rotary Is Growing Despite Fascists

An outstanding contribution of International Rotary is the concerted action of its various clubs toward prevention of war, according to Walter Kirkman, of Baltimore, district governor of the organization.

Mr. Kirkman brought out this point at the weekly luncheon of the local club yesterday at the Fort Cumberland hotel.

Despite setbacks in Germany and Italy, Rotary continues to make a consistent growth, Mr. Kirkman said, noting that there are now more than 200,000 Rotarians throughout the world in 4,780 units in 70 countries, all leaders of their professions, trades and callings.

The Rotary district to which the Cumberland club belongs, the 180th, is the second largest in the United States. Mr. Kirkman noted, and its steady growth indicates that it will have to be divided in the not distant future else there will not be enough luncheon meeting days in the year to enable the district governor to make his rounds.

There are now seventy-three clubs in the district, with six new ones in process of formation.

Mr. Kirkman discussed various activities of Rotary, district, national and international, and pointed out how some of these were supported by the cardinal principles of the organization.

At the close of his address, Charles L. Kopp, a past president of the club, presented Mr. Kirkman with a beautiful clock as a gift from the club members.

Preceding the membership meeting, Mr. Kirkman held sessions with the officers and committee chairmen, at which plans for the year's work of the local club were discussed.

Celanese Union Holds Meeting Tonight On Weave Shed

Celanese union members were scheduled to meet tonight to climax a union campaign to have the weaving operations resumed here.

Rumors at the plant last night were that a vote would be held on whether or not to strike to force the company to transfer its weaving activities back to Cumberland from Williamsport, Pa.

There was little expectation, however, that a strike would be called.

Between 300 and 400 local people, many of them women, were furloughed when the weaving operations were removed from Cumberland nearly a year ago.

Motorists Sue Each Other, Neither Wins

Circuit Court Jurors Find in Favor of Each Defendant

Testifying in a suit and counter-suit for damages in Circuit court yesterday, two motorists blamed each other for a collision, and a jury denied claims of both.

After deliberating more than two hours, the jury returned verdicts denying damages in each case, thereby affirming decisions rendered in Justice-of-the-Peace court, from which there had been an appeal.

The two cases, combined and tried together by agreement of counsel, were the suit of Joseph Vincent Koelker against James J. Durrett for damages of $289 and the counter-suit of Artie B. Durrett against Joseph Vincent Koelker for damages of $163.

The accident out of which the suits grew occurred early on the morning of Jan. 17 at the intersection of Furnace street and Fairview avenue.

Sharply conflicting testimony marked the trial.

Koelker testified he had entered the intersection from Furnace street, coming toward the city when the car driven by Durrett crashed into him. Damages to his car as a result of the crash amounted to $289.32, according to a repair bill introduced as evidence.

Durrett maintained that Koelker was at fault.

He had turned into Fairview avenue, he said, when the Koelker car collided with him.

Artie B. Durrett, who brought the suit against Koelker, is the administrator of the estate of Roy P. Durrett, who died last April.

He was the owner of the car driven by his son, James J. Durrett.

Damage to the Durrett car was placed at $163.05 by a bill introduced into evidence.

The jury was excused during the course of the trial when opposing counsel engaged in a dispute over the assertion that Koelker had already received insurance to compensate him for part of the damage.

Elmer B. Gower was attorney for Koelker, while Durrett was represented by W. Earle Cobey.

Methodist Young People Gather at Mt. Pleasant

More than 125 Methodist young people gathered at Mt. Pleasant Methodist church last night as the Beauchamp young people's union held its first bi-monthly meeting of the new conference year.

The group represented churches at Cumberland, Frostburg, Piedmont, Ridgeley, Fort Ashby and Mt. Pleasant.

A social hour followed the meeting, at which Walter Maxey, president, was expected back from the meeting today.

Judge 'Reluctantly' Directs Verdict Denying Widow's Claim

A widow was denied compensation in Circuit court yesterday for the death of her miner-husband as Judge William A. Huster handed down his first directed verdict.

Instructed by the court to deny the claim of Mrs. Bertha Coleman, the jury returned a verdict in favor of the defendants, the McNit Co. Coal Company, Inc., and the State Accident Fund.

According to the evidence, the claimant's husband, Harry Coleman, 39, died Nov. 10, 1937, of a heart attack while working at the Midlothian mine of the McNit Coal company.

Widow Sought $5,000

Mrs. Coleman sought compensation of $5,000 under the workmen's compensation act and appealed when the claim was denied by the State Industrial commission.

In instructing the jury to find against the claimant, Judge Huster commented that it was "unfortunate" that her claim must be denied by his ruling.

He granted "reluctantly" the prayer of the defendants that the jury be so instructed, he said.

It was his first directed verdict since he ascended the bench more than a year and a half ago.

Nothing "Unusual"

There was no evidence, the jurist pointed out, of any accidental in-

125 Will Attend Banquet and Hear Dr. Enders Deliver Keynote

The opening dinner rally of the Central YMCA Membership Enrollment Week will be held tonight at 6:15 in the YMCA, and will be attended by 125 workers and guests, according to announcement by General Chairman Harold W. Smith.

Dr. Martin Luther Enders, Pastor of First Lutheran Church, Baltimore, will be the guest of honor and will deliver the keynote address.

The opening dinner rally of the Central YMCA Membership Enrollment Week will be held tonight at 6:15 in the YMCA, and will be attended by 125 workers and guests, according to announcement by General Chairman Harold W. Smith.

Another shopper who read the story at breakfast could hardly finish her toast and coffee quickly enough to get downtown and tell Harold W. Smith, Chamber secretary, about similar experiences which she had.

She is a working woman, it seems, and often goes shopping when she is still on her way home in every day working clothes.

But she also goes shopping just as often when "dolled up."

The effect her clothes had on the manners of sales girls and the attitude of store personnel was very marked in some instances, she reported. And she, too, like the lady who varied her costume as a matter of scientific experiment, named names.

The motto is, of course, politeness pays, and that us ordinary folks appreciate considerate treatment as much as the persons with their pockets full of dough.

The above reminds us of the lad who came in Chief of Police Oscar Eyerman's office some time ago very disturbed. He had a dress purchased from one of the supposed-to-be-smart shops of the city, and he wanted the chief to make the shop take it back. His young sister had bought it, he said, but when she tried it on at home it was miles to big for her.

When she tried it on at the shop, the angry brother protested, the sales girl had taken up the slack with pins at strategic places.

All this, of course, was a little out of the chief's field and he recommended action in Justice-of-the-Peace court. We never did hear what happened, if anything, but we do know that while business is business, such monkey business as these instances show is bad business—and makes for more bad business.

After they had abandoned the search, he continued, he crawled "for miles" to the Pennsylvania line. He was unable to walk, he said, on account of his injured knee.
